Report from the Chair

In 2007, the Law Foundation of British Columbia was fortunate to be able to give out a record amount of money in grants. This was due to high trust account balances and favourable interest rates. It is our hope that the projects funded in 2007, continuing and otherwise, will have a lasting impact on access to justice in British Columbia.

The foundation’s mandate is to fund legal education, legal research, legal aid, law reform and law libraries. The foundation fulfills this mandate by funding 51 continuing programs and many one-time projects that promote the rule of law and a just society. These range from the Legal Services Society and the Law Courts Education Society of BC to the BC Public Interest Advocacy Centre and a number of community-based advocacy groups.
The foundation uses its limited resources to enable the public and the profession to have access to the best legal education, legal research, legal aid, law reform and law libraries that its resources can provide.

The foundation’s Funding Strategies Review process was completed in 2006, and recommendations from the process were reviewed in 2007. The review process, which has been described in previous annual reports, involved an intensive examination of all foundation-funded continuing programs to ensure the continued alignment of the foundation’s funding with its mission, and to optimize its grant making. In particular, we wanted to ensure that the work funded by the foundation resulted in measurable and significant outcomes for grantees’ clients and the public.

As a result of the review, the foundation’s application and reporting procedures have been refined. In particular, all continuing programs will be using an outcomes-based framework to guide the work of their foundation-funded programs. Ongoing evaluations will also continue to be an important part of the foundation’s work. In 2007, following the Funding Strategies Review, the foundation was pleased to increase ongoing grants to all continuing programs.

The other significant news in 2007 was the foundation’s unusually high income, for a second year in a row. Total income rose from $47 to $53 million during the year. This increase, while fuelled in part by a modest increase in the prime interest rate, was mostly generated by an increase in the amount of money being held in lawyers’ pooled trusts accounts.

We expect that the foundation’s income will decrease somewhat in 2008, but remain at a higher level than it was in 2005 and prior years.

There were 370 applications for funding assessed this year, which was a record number for the foundation. As a result, a record number of 51 continuing program grants, 47 project grants and 141 new initiative grants were made.

Grants totalling $44 million were approved in 2007. Of this amount, $14 million was allocated to the 51 continuing programs for their core operations and $30 million was provided for one-time projects. Of that $30 million, $19 million went to continuing grantees for 44 different projects, including the following:

- $6 million to the University of British Columbia, Faculty of Law, towards a new law school building, conditional on the Faculty of Law raising matching funds from the public and providing free space in the new building for the International Centre for Criminal Law Reform and Criminal Justice Policy.
- $3 million to the University of Victoria, Faculty of Law, to repurpose the law school library, upgrade a key classroom and provide an endowment for the diversity access study/pilot project.
- $2 million to the Legal Services Society for family and civil justice access centres.
- $1 million to the Law Society of BC for free public Internet access to statutes and regulations.
- $1 million to the BC Coalition to Eliminate Abuse of Seniors to implement an Elder Law Clinic.

There were also 144 other projects approved, totalling over $11 million, including:

- $2.3 million for 55 grants for capital/infrastructure needs of continuing grantees.
- $1.3 million for 32 grants for the development of a public legal education and information portal, a searchable network of public legal education resources.
- $900,000 for 4 projects to work on the issue of violence against women, with a focus on South Asian and other minority women.
- $1.4 million for 4 projects for the Legal Education in Schools initiative, to enhance students’ understanding of the importance of the rule of law.

Finally, 16 child welfare grants totalling $1,371,000 were approved. The Child Welfare Fund, created in 2004, was increased in 2006 by another $2 million grant from the Ministry of Children and Family Development. The fund’s purpose is to expand the use of alternate dispute resolution processes in the child protection area, with a focus on Aboriginal children. The fund is administered by a subcommittee of the foundation’s board of governors. The foundation thanks the ministry for its support.

I have noticed an improved atmosphere of co-operation among many of the foundation’s grantees, which I attribute partly to increased funding and partly to foundation staff’s innovative approaches. This co-operation increases efficiency and enhances access to justice for the public in British Columbia. I believe the limited funds available to groups are having a much greater impact as a result of this co-operation.
Although interest rates remained generally low in 2007, competitive interest rate agreements negotiated with financial institutions, along with increased trust balances, provided continued higher income. We commend Royal Bank of Canada, Vancity Savings Credit Union, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, TD Canada Trust, Bank of Montreal, Bank of Nova Scotia and HSBC Bank Canada. The foundation thanks members of the profession who choose these institutions that provide the highest rates of return.

Interest rates increased marginally in the middle of 2007, and declined at the end of the year. Fortunately, pooled trust account balances remained high throughout the year and even increased slightly. Interest rates are expected to decline in 2008. A decline in interest rates will have a significant effect on the foundation’s income. The foundation will continue to monitor interest rates and trust account balances carefully, and expects to modestly increase its reserves to protect future grants.

The year 2007 saw two changes to the board of governors. Christine Elliott of Vancouver finished her term, as did Barbara Cromarty of Trail.

Governor Elliott served on the following committees during her six-year term: New Grants (Chair), Policy and Planning, Child Welfare Fund, and Finance and Administration. Her wide range of interests and expertise will be missed.

Governor Cromarty served on the following committees: Child Welfare Fund (Chair), Policy and Planning, Bursary, Scholarship and Fellowship (Chair), and New Grants. She guided the Child Welfare Fund committee through its formative years and provided thoughtful leadership to the foundation throughout her tenure.

Two new board members have been appointed to the Law Foundation board by the Law Society:

- Kelly Maag from Kootenay County, who was called to the bar in 1985, has been a sole practitioner in Cranbrook since 1986, practicing commercial real estate and corporate law.

- His Honour Judge Dennis Schmidt, of Vancouver County, was called to the bar in 1974, and had a general litigation practice in Campbell River from 1975 to 1981, when he was appointed to the Provincial Court of British Columbia. He has served as a judge in Campbell River, Northern Vancouver Island, Vancouver, on the Northern BC Circuit and in Richmond, where he is currently the Administrative Judge. He was the Associate Chief Judge of the Provincial Court from 1995 to 2002 and from 2005 to 2007.

Finally, I finished my two-year term as chair of the foundation board, and in November, Dev Dley, QC, was elected as the new board chair.

Mr. Dley practices law in Kamloops. He has served on a number of foundation committees, including Finance and Administration, Bursary, Scholarship and Fellowship, and Policy and Planning, which he has chaired for the last few years.

Mr. Dley received his LLB from the University of Victoria in 1978, was called to the bar in 1979 and appointed Queen’s Counsel in 2005. Mr. Dley has his own law firm in Kamloops, where he carries on a litigation practice. Previously, he was Commissioner and General Counsel for the Western Hockey League (1996 – 2000). Mr. Dley’s community work includes serving on the boards of several charity fund-raising golf tournaments and the BCAA Traffic Safety Foundation. He has also served as a governor at Malaspina College in Nanaimo, as a trustee for the Lake Cowichan School Board and on the board of the Thompson Rivers University Foundation.

I have one year remaining in my term as a foundation governor and am pleased to have been asked to serve as chair emeritus of the foundation for that period.

In closing, I would like to acknowledge the work of my colleagues on the Law Foundation board. Governors volunteer many hours and their significant abilities to carry out the foundation’s work. I also want to thank foundation staff who administer the day-to-day work of the foundation, handling applications and grants, and providing support to the board. The profession and the public are well served by the dedication of these people.

Mission Statement

To use our income for the benefit of the public of the province of British Columbia by supporting programs that advance and promote the rule of law and a just society. The Law Foundation recognizes the diversity of the people of British Columbia and endeavours to be responsive to the diverse public of British Columbia in its workforce, board and grant making.

The Mission Statement and Program Objectives have been adopted by the board of governors as policy guidelines. These are the principles upon which funding decisions will be based.

Purpose

British Columbia led the way in 1969 when it established the first law foundation in North America. Since then, almost every other jurisdiction in North America has followed BC's lead by establishing a law foundation.

The Law Foundation of BC is a non-profit foundation created by legislation to receive and distribute the interest on clients' funds held in lawyers' pooled trust accounts maintained in financial institutions. Pooled trust accounts are used to hold client funds for short periods of time, until it becomes feasible to distribute those monies to the client or others. Typically, some funds held in this way are purchase monies in real estate transactions, while others are retainers, settlement proceeds, estate funds, etc.

Because of the difficulty and cost of ascertaining how much interest in pooled trust accounts was attributable to each client's funds, and because the amount of interest related to each client was usually small, for many years financial institutions paid no interest on these accounts, although the total funds in the pooled account might be very substantial. As a result, the financial institutions profited from the use of the funds in the pooled trust accounts without charge.

British Columbia lawyers pioneered a change to this practice in 1969 when they persuaded the provincial government to enact legislation requiring financial institutions to pay interest on these pooled trust accounts to the Law Foundation, which would then use the interest to benefit the public of British Columbia.

The legislation directed the Law Foundation to distribute these funds in five areas:
- legal education,
- legal research,
- legal aid,
- law reform and
- law libraries.

The foundation recognizes that, while its objects are legal in nature, the income is to be allocated to programs that will benefit the general public of British Columbia.

From its inception through to 2007, the Law Foundation has approved grants totalling more than $374 million to support important law-related programs in British Columbia.

Administration

The Law Foundation is administered by a board of governors (the board), which is responsible for making all decisions concerning grants. It has 18 volunteer members:
- the Attorney General (or his/her appointee);
- 3 persons, not lawyers, appointed by the Attorney General;
- 12 members of the Law Society or the judiciary appointed by the benchers to represent geographical areas of the province; and
- 2 members of the Law Society appointed by the BC Branch, Canadian Bar Association.

The Law Foundation is independent of the government, the Law Society and the BC Branch, Canadian Bar Association, although its governors are appointed by these bodies. The board has five standing committees:
- Bursary, Scholarship and Fellowship
- Finance and Administration
- New Grants
- Policy and Planning
- Special Needs Fund

In 2007, the board also had two other committees: Child Welfare Fund and Funding Strategies.

The board and the committees meet regularly during the year. An administrative staff of 11 assists the board.
How Grants Are Made

The Law Foundation’s funds are used for the purposes of legal education, legal research, legal aid, law reform and law libraries. A grant application must fall within one or more of these categories to be considered for funding support, and it must establish that it will result in a clear benefit to the people of British Columbia. Grants are normally restricted to non-profit organizations.

The foundation sets its grant budget and funding guidelines on an annual basis. Those seeking grant support are urged to discuss their proposals with foundation staff before committing time and resources to put together funding requests. If a project appears to fit within the mission statement, program objectives and funding guidelines for that year, a formal proposal with more detailed information will be requested.

Application deadline dates can be obtained by contacting the Law Foundation.

For reporting purposes, grants are listed in the Annual Report under one of the Law Foundation’s five statutorily mandated objectives (see also chart). However, many of the organizations’ activities fall under more than one of the mandated areas.

Grants are divided into 2007 Continuing Programs and 2007 Projects. Within each sub-section, grants are listed from highest to lowest dollar amounts, rather than alphabetically by name.

South Fraser Women’s Services Society

South Fraser Women’s Services Society (SFWSS) has a 29-year history of providing information, resources, support and counselling to women in the Surrey area.

The Law Foundation provides ongoing operating funds to SFWSS, which offers its community a legal information and advocacy program and a free family law clinic (in collaboration with the Western Canada Society to Access Justice). The legal advocacy program and legal clinic aim to make the law more accessible by providing legal education and making legal assistance and information available to economically disadvantaged women who do not qualify for legal aid. A large number of the women accessing these services are immigrants.

Responding to urgent community needs by building partnerships and finding practical solutions makes SFWSS a very valuable service to the Surrey community. Recently, SFWSS launched an innovative legal education project to provide the South Asian community with legal education related to violence against women and children.

Laura Watts, staff lawyer, BC Law Institute, and national director, Canadian Centre for Elder Law Studies

Laura Watts is at the forefront of a challenge faced by communities across BC — addressing the needs of our aging population — and is active in ensuring that effective legal frameworks and services are available to serve those members of our community.

Ms. Watts works in a number of capacities on these issues. She is a staff lawyer at the BC Law Institute, an organization that receives ongoing operating funds from the Law Foundation. She is also the national director of the Canadian Centre for Elder Law Studies, the national organization focused on issues of law and aging. Annually, she organizes the Canadian Conference on Elder Law, which is an international conference advancing issues of elder law to both legal and interdisciplinary audiences.

Ms. Watts is also assisting with the development of a free elder law clinic, a pilot project of the BC Coalition to Eliminate Abuse of Seniors. Finally, Ms. Watts is a legislative drafter involved in creating a provincial strategy for adults with capability challenges and modernizing adult abuse and guardianship legislation in Canada.

December 31, 2007

To the Governors
The Law Foundation of British Columbia

We have audited the statement of financial position of The Law Foundation of British Columbia as at December 31, 2007 and 2006 and the statements of changes in net assets, income and expenses, and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the foundation’s governors. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audits in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the foundation as at December 31, 2007 and 2006 and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the years then ended in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles.

1. NATURE OF ACTIVITIES

The Law Foundation of British Columbia (the foundation) was established in 1969 under the Legal Profession Act of British Columbia as a tax exempt not-for-profit organization to receive and distribute interest on clients’ trust funds held in lawyers’ pooled trust accounts. The foundation is administered by a board of governors who are responsible for distributing these funds to provide legal aid, legal research, law reform, legal education and law libraries for the benefit of the general public of British Columbia.

2. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Cash Basis — Interest on Lawyers’ Pooled Trust Accounts

The foundation uses the cash basis of reporting interest earned on lawyers’ pooled trust accounts.

The foundation assumes that solicitors who hold funds in trust for or on account of clients comply strictly with Section 62 of the Legal Profession Act and Part 3 Division 7 of the Rules of The Law Society of British Columbia. These rules require that interest earned on funds held in lawyers’ pooled trust accounts be remitted to the foundation.

Property and Equipment

Expenditures on property and equipment are capitalized and amortized on a straight-line basis as follows:

- Leasehold improvements: term of lease
- Furniture and equipment: 5 years
- Computers and accessories: 3 years

For property and equipment, except leasehold improvements, one-half the normal amortization is recorded in the year the asset is acquired.

Investment Income and Operating Expenses

Investment income and operating expenses are accounted for on an accrual basis.

Program and Project Grants Approved

The foundation expenses grants in the current year that provide annual operating funding to organizations covering twelve month periods beginning in the current and subsequent calendar years, plus grants for special projects which may be payable over several years. Those grants that are not yet paid are reflected as grants payable.

Change in Accounting Policy Related to Investments

Investments are recorded at market value. In 2006, investments were recorded at the lower of cost and market value. This change in accounting policy has had no impact on reported earnings for the year. Gains and losses arising from changes in the market value of investments are recorded as they occur.

Child Welfare Fund

The Child Welfare Fund is an externally restricted contribution that is being reported as income as qualifying expenses are incurred or grants are awarded.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of income and expenses during the reported period. Actual results could differ from the estimates.

Statement of Cash Flows

The statement of cash flows is prepared on a net cash basis and cash flows from operating activities are presented using the direct method.

3. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The foundation has adopted the recommendations of Section 3855 of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants Handbook dealing with financial instruments. The foundation’s financial instruments consist of cash, investments, accounts payable and grants payable. The foundation has elected to value its financial instruments at fair value on a held for trading basis, which requires that any change in fair value be brought in to income or expense as it occurs. The foundation’s investments are the only financial instrument with a significant difference between cost and fair value.

The foundation is subject to market, credit and interest rate risk on its financial instruments. In the opinion of management, the foundation is not otherwise exposed to any other significant risk with respect to its financial instruments.

6. CHILD WELFARE FUND

The BC Ministry of Children and Family Development granted the foundation $1 million in 2004 and an additional $2 million in 2006 to develop innovative proposals consistent with the guiding principles of the Child, Family and Community Service Act, to expand the use of alternative dispute resolution in child welfare — particularly for Aboriginal children and families.

The fund comprises:

8. GRANT STABILIZATION RESERVE

The foundation has established an annual grants budget with the goal of insulating continuing programs from volatile fluctuations in the foundation’s income that result from changes in the prime rate and the balances in lawyers’ pooled trust accounts that generate income to the foundation. The reserve functions as a stabilization fund which declines in years in which the foundation’s net income is less than the grants approved, and increases when net income is greater than the grants approved.

9. INVESTMENT INCOME

Investment income comprises:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>2007</th>
<th>2006</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Interest and dividends</td>
<td>3,840,965</td>

10. UNCLAIMED TRUST FUNDS AND OTHER INCOME

Unclaimed Trust Funds

Under the Law Society of British Columbia’s (the society) unclaimed trust fund procedures, lawyers submit unclaimed trust funds to the society. The society holds the funds for five years before remitting the money to the foundation. The total for 2007 was $112,082 (2006 — $120,016).

Other Income

In 2007, the Law Society of BC Pro Bono Funding Task Force recommended that the society allocate a portion of annual lawyers’ practice fees to fund pro bono services. The Task Force noted that the foundation was uniquely well suited to determining recipients of pro bono grant funds. At their March meeting, the society benchers decided to transfer one percent of the general fund portion of annual lawyers’ practice fees to the foundation to be used for funding pro bono programs. The total for 2007 was $97,344 (2006 — Nil).

2007 project grants include grants of $6,250,000 (2006 — $8,750,000) that were originally conditional upon the receipt of matching funds by the grantees. At December 31, 2007, aggregate grants totalling $6,572,276 were conditional upon the receipt of matching funds.

12. LEASE COMMITMENT

In addition to shared building operating costs, property taxes and GST, the foundation is committed to annual rent payments until April 30, 2013 for its office premises. Additional space was leased in January 2007 and the required payments are now as follows:
